

A collage of six photographs documenting a community tree-planting activity. The images show various participants, including students and adults, engaged in planting young trees in a grassy area. Some individuals are wearing face masks and gloves. A small dog is also visible in one of the photos. The background features a red brick building and a paved area.